Office Hours: One-hour before and after class or by appointment.

I. Course Description

This class – "Introduction to Online Media" – concentrates on the journalism and critical thinking involved in Web work, and the processes involved in putting together online news and information sites. You will learn the basics of constructing online story packages: planning, reporting, editing, determining the best use of multimedia, website production, and visual presentation. You will also develop a critical vocabulary, basic understanding and solid foundation of what works well on the web and why. As a student majoring in journalism, understanding how the Internet and other digital technologies have changed the business of journalism is imperative.

After taking this class, you should have the skills to work at an online publication, as well as a portfolio of multimedia stories online. And ultimately, whether you end up working in online news or not, having that knowledge will greatly prepare you for success as a modern journalist in this evolving landscape.

Although specific presentation expectations may vary somewhat for Video/Audio and for Text students, all students will be expected to produce work of publishable quality. This includes professionalism in presentation, editorial decisions, editing, spelling and grammar. Work produced for class publications and other class assignments is expected to be of the quality seen in comparable professional sites, and will be graded accordingly.

There may be guest speakers, including online journalism professionals who will provide keen insight into all aspects of online news.

Please note that specific assignments, readings and weekly subjects may be revised as the course progresses.

Every student is required to schedule at least one meeting with the instructor sometime around the semester's mid-point. However, you should feel free to talk to your instructor at any point.

II. Overall Learning Objectives and Assessment

Through this course you will acquire the skills to develop basic online story packages with multiple elements, including text, visuals (video, photos, graphics, etc.), audio, interactivity and navigation. You will learn how the Web works, via HTML/CSS/jQuery, FTP and more. You will also understand online ethics and basics of copyright law, design, typography, color and photo usage.

By the end of the semester, students will be skilled in:

- How the web works
- Optimizing photos for the Web

- File structures
- FTP software (Fetch/Filezilla)
- URL basics
- HTML/CSS Web-page creation software (Dreamweaver)
- Web apps/tools/software
- Effectively using blog software
- Understanding tiers for multimedia
- (Photoshop basics)
- Audio production (Audacity)
- Audio slideshows (Soundslides)
- Creating Web video (Flip)
- Web Design/Infographics
- Social Network reporting (Twitter)
- Designing a graphic (Photoshop)
- Understanding Web metrics

III. Description of Assignments

Students will do a series of in- and out-of-class exercises to achieve the course objectives. The underlining goal is for you to master the technical basics and editorial skills required of journalists working for online news sites such as nytimes.com or cnn.com.

You will:

- Complete at least two online news-feature story packages (approved by the instructor before work begins; the format for story pitches will be specified for each assignment):
 - Midterm: An original online story package developed, reported, written and edited specifically for this class. It will be comprised of a text mainbar, an audio slideshow, a "Webby" element and coded onto an HTML page.
 - Final Project: An original online story package developed, reported, written and edited specifically for this class. Comprised of multiple stories in addition to employing a variety of multimedia storytelling elements. (text, audio, audio slideshow, photos, video, Web apps, etc.). Plus, layout and other tasks to get the package published onto the class site. Note: This will be presented by students during the assigned day/time during finals week (see schedule for dates).
- Complete several smaller multimedia exercises related to photography, audio, video and online content. These may be in-class assignments, assignments with a 24-hour window or other small projects. Some may be brief; some may be complex.
- Lead and facilitate a class discussion relating to a relevant Web journalism topic.
- Regularly contribute to the class blog/site.

IV. Grading

a. Breakdown of Grade

Assignment	% of Grade
Exercises/Assignments	20 percent
In-class, online participation	10 percent
Presentations/Facilitated discussions	10 percent
Quizzes	10 percent
Midterm	20 percent
Final story package	30 percent
TOTAL	100%

b. Grading Scale

95% to 100%: A	77% to 79%: C+	60% to 63%: D-
90% to 94%: A-	74% to 76%: C	0% to 59%: F

87% to 89%: B+	70% to 73%: C-
84% to 86%: B	67% to 69%: D+
80% to 83%: B-	64% to 66%: D

c. Grading Standards

- Projects earning an A are professional and ready to publish; they are accurate, clear and comprehensive, and include multiple online elements. Headlines and text are well written and require only minor editing for AP style, grammar/punctuation/spelling and consistency. Visual or audio elements are relevant (e.g., no video just for the sake of having video), and edited or cropped effectively and appropriately.
- Projects earning a B require more than minor editing, and have a few style or spelling errors. There is at least one significant online element omitted.
- Projects earning a C need considerable editing or rewriting. There are online elements missing or incomplete.
- Projects earning a D require excessive rewriting and have numerous errors. They likely go little beyond the original print or broadcast story (if there is one), or are sloppy and/or unprofessional. They are not publishable and should not have been submitted.
- Projects earning an F have failed to meet the major criteria of the assignment, have numerous errors or both. They may be misleading or contain content from third parties used without attribution. They are not publishable and should not have been submitted. A story that has a factual error that is material to the story merits an F. There should be no exceptions. Excessive occurrences of misspelled proper names also merits an F.

Assignments and projects will be judged on elements including text, visuals (photos, graphics, video), interactivity, navigation and adherence to assignment specifics. Design and color decisions will be judged on appropriateness and usage of concepts discussed in class. Because the class is cumulative, students should demonstrate an understanding of all previously covered concepts in each assignment, even if the assignment does not specifically address those issues.

Assignments and projects are to be turned in on time and in a professional manner, edited to AP style, and by the assigned deadline (some projects may be time-specific).

Furthermore, major assignments will be graded on a scale of 1-100, and then translated into traditional letter grades. You can lose points for:

- AP Style, Punctuation, minor spelling errors or coding/broken links = Two to five points each.
- Clarity, organization = Five to seven points for short stories; seven to 10 points for longer stories.
- Omissions = Five points.
- Misspellings (of proper names) and/or factual errors = Automatic "F" on the assignment.

 If your stories have too many style, punctuation and/or spelling errors, you may be asked to rewrite your assignment and return it to your instructor within 24 hours, or be graded accordingly.

NOTE: As an online journalism class, the same high journalism standards from print and broadcast disciplines are expected.

V. Assignment Submission Policy

Late assignments get a failing grade, but should be completed nonetheless as they may qualify for a grade up to a "C" under the rewrite policy. Students should turn in each assignment as specified – some may be sent by e-mail, some turned in as hard copy, some posted to your web space. Do not remove materials from your web space until you have received confirmation from your instructor that the material has been graded.

This class will be carried out like a professional newsroom. The instructor acts as editor and you need to be in communication during the assignments. Don't miss deadline.

VI. Required Readings and Supplementary Materials

TEXTBOOKS

These textbooks are not required, but recommended. They each offer different perspectives and tutorials on Web journalism.

- Briggs, Mark (2009). "JournalismNEXT: A Practical Guide to Digital Reporting and Publishing," Washington, D.C.: CQ Press.
- Gitner, Seth (2015). "Multimedia Storytelling for Digital Communicators in a Multiplatform World," Routledge.
- Williams, Robin and Tolett, John (2005). "The Non-Designer's Web Book, Third Edition," Peachpit Press.

NEWS CONSUMPTION/OTHER RESOURCES

As journalists, it is imperative that you become news consumers. You must follow the news and be familiar with what is going on around the world, the country and in Los Angeles. You should read the Los Angeles Times EVERY DAY. While I won't require it, I strongly encourage you to subscribe to the newspaper rather than only reading it online. You should also watch at least one local and one national television newscast each day (you can vary the source from day to day), and listen to NPR, either Morning Edition or All Things Considered (listen on KPCC, 89.3 FM so you will also hear the local cut-ins) and KNX 1070 (AM) Radio. You should also develop a list of other news sources that you check daily; these could include LA Observed, The Daily News, New York Times, Washington Post, Sacramento Bee, The Huffington Post, Pro Publica, California Watch, Rough and Tumble.

Web journalism is in constant evolution. These lists of sites are additional resources to read and learn from throughout the semester.

COURSE MATERIALS

- AP Stylebook: Your work is expected to conform to AP style, unless otherwise noted by the instructor that another style takes precedence.
- Blackboard: The course will use Blackboard mainly for grading and syllabus. Any emails sent via Blackboard will be sent to your USC email address, so make you check that address regularly.
To log into Blackboard:
 1. Go to: <http://blackboard.usc.edu>
 2. You must use your USC login and password on Blackboard
 3. Click on your section
- Class Site: The course will use a customized site to post assignments for the course. Information about assignments THAT ARE NOT IN THE SYLLABUS will be posted on this site, as well as any supplemental readings and documents used for the course. Therefore, it is imperative that you check the site for regularly for assignments and announcements. Any emails sent via the site will be sent to your USC email address, so make you check that address regularly.

IX. Policies and Procedures

Additional Policies

WRITING COACHES

Writing coaches are available during office hours and by appointment. The writing coaches for Fall 2015 are:

Print/Text: Miki Turner, mpturner@usc.edu

Broadcast/Video: Liz McHale, emchale@usc.edu, (818) 749-0446

More information: <http://bit.ly/ascj-fa2015-coaches>

MULTIMEDIA COACHING/HELP

Technical assistance is available by contacting New Media Specialist, Courtney Miller, at courtne@usc.edu or 213-740-3433 to schedule an appointment. You can get advanced training on all Adobe products through the Annenberg Digital Lounge located on the third floor of ANN – courses will be posted.

RESEARCH ASSISTANCE

USC has Libraries have 23 libraries and research centers that provide access to thousands of electronic and print resources. Make sure you become familiar with resources available to you. The librarian for the Annenberg School for Communication & Journalism is Chimene Tucker, 213-740-2332 cetucker@usc.edu. For your research needs schedule an appointment with Chimene or visit the Reference Desk in Doheny Library.

<http://www.usc.edu/libraries>

AGGREGATION

Aggregation is the term for doing on the Web what newspapers and broadcasters have done for decades -- taking content from a variety of clearly labeled sources and packaging it into a unique news product. You may not be aggregating for the Web much in the text and audio-visual courses this Fall. But you never know. In any case, you will certainly be aggregating in other courses and/or Learning Labs. So here are the rules: Anything that you do not report or produce yourself must be attributed and/or linked to the original source. In an aggregated story, summarize the story in your own words, and use only a few quotes. The goal is to encourage readers to link to the full story.

ATTENDANCE

Attendance is required for all classes. If you expect to miss class due to a family emergency, a medical problem, or a religious holiday, please contact your instructor beforehand (either send an e-mail or give your instructor a call). Tardiness is unacceptable. If you expect to be more than 15 minutes late to class, please stay home.

If you miss a class, please get the notes from another student. Separate “catch-up” sessions will not be conducted. In-class assignments cannot made-up, either. Although each JOUR 309 syllabus is similar, the classes themselves are different and move at varying paces. So you can’t make up a class by going to another one in the same sequence.

CLASS PROTOCOL AND PROFESSIONAL DRESS CODE

This is a professional degree program. As such, students are expected to deal with each other and with their instructors in a collegial manner. That means you should immediately talk to your instructor if you have any concerns about the course, grading, fellow students, the length of time it takes to get back graded assignments, etc. If an issue has not been resolved, please contact Prof. Bill Celis at celis@asc.usc.edu.

For purposes of this class, you are a bona fide member of the working press. You should expect to be treated with all of the normal courtesies and privileges afforded to the news media. In return, you are expected to represent the profession in a dignified and appropriate manner. If you do not take yourself seriously, be advised that no one else will.

If you want to be taken seriously in the field then you need to dress like a professional, not a college student. Business casual is best: women should wear skirts or dresses of an appropriate length and pants that are not jeans; men should wear button-down shirts and pants that are not jeans. No skimpy or tight clothing, shorts, wrinkled t-shirts or flip flops. Avoid clothing with any sort of logo, including USC logos.

INTERNSHIPS

The value of professional internships as part of the overall educational experience of our students has long been recognized by the School of Journalism. Accordingly, while internships are not required for successful completion of this course, any student enrolled in this course that undertakes and completes an approved, non-paid internship during this semester shall earn academic extra credit herein of an amount equal to 1 percent of the total available semester points for this course. To receive instructor approval, a student must request an internship letter from the Annenberg Career Development Office and bring it to the instructor to sign by the end of the third week of classes. The student must submit the signed letter to the media organization, along with the evaluation form provided by the Career Development Office. The form should be filled out by the intern supervisor and returned to the instructor at the end of the semester. No credit will be given if an evaluation form is not turned into the instructor by the last day of class. Note: The internship must be unpaid and can only be applied to one journalism class.

Statement on Academic Conduct and Support Systems

a. Academic Conduct

Plagiarism

Presenting someone else's ideas as your own, either verbatim or recast in your own words - is a serious academic offense with serious consequences. Please familiarize yourself with the discussion of plagiarism in SCampus in Section 11, Behavior Violating University Standards <https://scampus.usc.edu/b/11-00-behavior-violating-university-standards-and-appropriate-sanctions/>. Other forms of academic dishonesty are equally unacceptable. See additional information in SCampus and university policies on scientific misconduct, <http://policy.usc.edu/scientific-misconduct/>.

USC School of Journalism Policy on Academic Integrity

The following is the USC Annenberg School of Journalism's policy on academic integrity and repeated in the syllabus for every course in the school:

"Since its founding, the USC School of Journalism has maintained a commitment to the highest standards of ethical conduct and academic excellence. Any student found plagiarizing, fabricating, cheating on examinations, and/or purchasing papers or other assignments faces sanctions ranging from an 'F' on the assignment to dismissal from the School of Journalism. All academic integrity violations will be reported to the office of Student Judicial Affairs & Community Standards (SJACS), as per university policy, as well as journalism school administrators."

In addition, it is assumed that the work you submit for this course is work you have produced entirely by yourself, and has not been previously produced by you for submission in another course or Learning Lab, without approval of the instructor.

b. Support Systems

Equity and Diversity

Discrimination, sexual assault, and harassment are not tolerated by the university. You are encouraged to report any incidents to the Office of Equity and Diversity <http://equity.usc.edu/> or to the Department of Public Safety <http://capsnet.usc.edu/department/department-public-safety/online-forms/contact-us>. This is important for the safety of the whole USC community. Another member of the university community - such as a friend, classmate, advisor, or faculty member - can help initiate the report, or can initiate the report on behalf of another person. The Center for Women and Men <http://www.usc.edu/student-affairs/cwm/> provides 24/7 confidential support, and the sexual assault resource center webpage <https://sarc.usc.edu/> describes reporting options and other resources.

Support with Scholarly Writing

A number of USC's schools provide support for students who need help with scholarly writing. Check with your advisor or program staff to find out more. Students whose primary language is not English should check with the American Language Institute <http://dornsife.usc.edu/ali>, which sponsors courses and workshops specifically for international graduate students.

The Office of Disability Services and Programs

http://sait.usc.edu/academicsupport/centerprograms/dsp/home_index.html provides certification for students with disabilities and helps arrange the relevant accommodations.

Stress Management

Students are under a lot of pressure. If you start to feel overwhelmed, it is important that you reach out for help. A good place to start is the USC Student Counseling Services office at 213-740-7711. The service is confidential, and there is no charge.

Emergency Information

If an officially declared emergency makes travel to campus infeasible, USC Emergency Information <http://emergency.usc.edu/> will provide safety and other updates, including ways in which instruction will be continued by means of Blackboard, teleconferencing, and other technology.

X. About Your Instructor

ROBERT HERNANDEZ, aka WebJournalist, has made a name for himself as a journalist of the Web, not just on the Web. His primary focus is exploring and developing the intersection of technology and journalism – to empower people, inform reporting and storytelling, engage community, improve distribution and, whenever possible, enhance revenue. He is an Associate Professor of Professional Practice at USC Annenberg, but he’s not an academic... he’s more of a “hackademic” and specializes in “MacGyvering” Web journalism solutions. He connects dots and people. He has worked for seattletimes.com, SFGate.com, eXaminer.com, La Prensa Gráfica, among others. Hernandez is also the co-founder of #wjchat and co-creator of the Diversify Journalism Project. His most recent work includes Augmented Reality, Wearables/Google Glass and Virtual Reality. He serves on the Online News Association board and a lifetime member of the National Association of Hispanic Journalists. He is the recipient of SPJ’s 2015 Distinguished Teaching in Journalism Award.
